Everything in Wearing Apparel conducive to the comfort of the

Masculine Gender

JOLLY GOOD TIME

While on your vacation lies in the fact of purchasing your outfit at Bicknell Bros.

Our Umbrellas and Travelling Bags are made of such adhesive material as to stay by their owner; they are so charged with adhesiveness as to "never get left," providing their owner is not absent-minded, keeps sober, and don't beat his railroad fare or board bill.

If you buy Pantaloon at BICKNELL BROS., of their own manufacture, they will make you happy while your wife is at the beach. Because, why? They will not be eternally ripping and buttons falling off.

Our French Flannel Vacation Shirts are the best on earth. We don't mean to say that they are the highest in price, but they have honest value in them.

Silk and satin stripes, so much admired by young men, will be found in our large assortment, and our salesmen are instructed to tell their customers what to expect of them. The fact is, their youthful beauty is gone after the first washing, unless it is done very carefully. If you want a shirt to wear a few days, just for its beauty, buy a silk stripe, otherwise let some other fellow buy it, and you take one made of cotton, wool, and common sense.

If you would wear a Straw Hat, under which no man will perspire, unless by heat and exercise, and beautiful Summer Neckwear, with a look so frigid as to match the North Pole, and so artistically beautiful as to almost draw the eye of your best girl from its natural socket, buy the same at BICKNELL BROS.

If you want Boys' Vacation Outfits that will make your darlings look sweeter than ever, as cool as a cucumber, serviceable and strong enough to hang a boy up high and dry on a wire fence, or an apple tree limb, get the same at BICKNELL BROS.

If you want a hammock for a little money with pillow and spreader combined, that is strong enough to carry a load of hay, and will tell no courtship tales, we shall recommend BICKNELL BROS. as the place to get them.

In a word: If you want the best assortment of everything to be found in any one clothing house in Massachusetts, for a Vacation Outfit, and at such prices as will enable you to pay travelling and board bills, let the street clock direct you to the right place.—BICKNELL BROS.

BEAUTIFUL LAKE COCHICHEWICK

There are few regions in New England which the wild legends and traditions of the fast-vanishing race of red men have not invested with a peculiar charm. The poetic legends of Whittier have made famous the White Hills of New Hampshire, and the lake region of that state as well, but there are many other localities, equally worthy, which are still unsung, and the legends which remain to remind us of aboriginal days are fast vanishing into forgetfulness.

Such a region is that in the immediate neighborhood of Lake Cochichewick, in North Andover, where, hundreds of years ago, the noble race of red men built their graceful wigwams and lighted their council fires. There they watched the golden maize ripen in the fertile meadows under the influence of the September sun, and pursued the bounding deer through the dense forests. Lake Cochichewick was then, as now, one of the most beautiful sheets of water in all this region, and its waters were as clear and cool as a shower of pearls.

The same conditions exist now. No polluted streams flow into it, but it is fed by springs in the bottom of the lake, which make its waters absolutely pure, and always cold and clear. Its shores are covered with small, smooth pebbles, and upon adjacent hillsides forests of oak and evergreen still remain.

At the lower end of the lake three large ice houses have been erected and filled with ice from this clear body of water. Six thousand tons have been housed here by EDWARD ADAMS, who is prepared to furnish ice of absolute purity to his customers. It is vastly different from the ordinary ice sold in New England, and it can be obtained by leaving your order at the store of

VALPEY BROTHERS, Andover.

Strictly Pure Ice!

Citizens of Andover desiring a strictly pure article of ice should see that their supply comes from Ponds. As pure a sheet of water as there is in Massachusetts, surrounded by hill and wood. Fed entirely by springs, there is no chance for impurities, not even locomotive cinders. It is of as much historic interest as her larger sister in connection with the Red Men or the Black, and is not behind in sentimentality, and it is ahead in purity.

I secured two thousand tons of ice from its surface the past winter, and am prepared to furnish persons with it at reasonable rates in quantities to suit. Orders left with REA & ABBOTT will receive prompt attention.

NOTICE.

They gave names which were known to be false but Chief Cheever felt pretty sure where they came from, and when they did not appear on Monday he commenced to hunt them up. On Thursday three of the men were brought before Judge Poor and paid a fine of $1 and costs amounting to $5.75 each. ## ORIGINAL COMMUNICATIONS.

Prohibition in Andover.

To the Editor of the Townsman:

At every annual March election the citizens of Andover are called upon to decide whether or not intoxicating liquors should be sold in town during the year. And so far, the vote of the town has invariably been against the saloon and in favor of prohibition with increasing majorities. Last Spring only eighty-five votes were cast for licensed grogshops, and there is no reason for supposing that these frequent decisions of the town will ever be reversed. The people of Andover, with few exceptions, believe that the sale of intoxicating liquor as a beverage, is an offensive nuisance—a source of temptation to their youth, a prolific parent of disorder, poverty and crime, a palpable barrier to the town's best interest and prosperity, and as such do not hesitate to put their seal of condemnation upon it by their votes.

And what person who has carefully examined this subject in all its bearings, ethical, economic, religious and political, can doubt the wisdom of such a policy? Who doubts, except perhaps those who defend the use of liquors, if "pure" and in the form of "hygienic tonics," that Andover is far better off, is a more happy, prosperous, and respectable town than it would be if it voted to establish a saloon at every corner of its principal streets? Who doubts that a prudent person seeking a home for his family, would vastly prefer to settle in such a locality than under the desolating and demoralizing influences of the dramshop? Who doubts that life and property are better secured, our streets more quiet, our daughters and mothers more free from insults, and the whole moral tone and character of our people more elevated than they would be under the disastrous rule of inebriety? There can be no doubt of this in any mind that is familiar with the legion of evils and woes that flow from the use of alcoholic drinks, and the history of those places where the people give legal sanction to the business of drunkard making.

But, then, dear TOWNSMAN, all this is prohibition. When the citizens of Andover vote "no license," they vote to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors in their town. And this so far as Andover is concerned, is to all intents and purposes downright prohibition. So far then they must be ranked as prohibitionists, and believe in making their fellow-citizens "virtuous and temperate by law," which is considered by some to be a very unwise and dangerous process. But then the question naturally occurs whether after all it is not better to make a man virtuous and temperate by law than to make him a drunkard by law? In a limited territorial sense, then a majority of the citizens of Andover are nothing but crazy prohibitionists, and deserve that honorable distinction which rumsellers and their allies often call them, of "visionary theorists," and "impracticable fanatics"—names that are supposed to be very frightful to some, but are becoming more and more to have a glorious meaning, since they have been applied to the best and noblest of our race in all ages. It was even said of Christ, "He hath a devil."

But then, we ask seriously, why confine the action of this principle of prohibition to the small territory of Andover? Why be so exclusive and selfish in the application and use of a good idea? If the prohibition of the sale of intoxicating liquors is a blessed thing for Andover, why is it not equally useful for the whole of Essex County, the State, and the whole country? Why this anxiety in regard to the welfare of Andover, and this cruel indifference or adverse action when the welfare of the State is at stake? Why this terrible inconsistency of voting for prohibition in Andover and voting against the Constitutional Amendment that proposed to apply the same principle to both town and State? One would suppose that the true patriot and the sincere friend of temperance would feel as much interest in the welfare and good name of his state as of his town. Not a few devoted friends of temperance were amazed at the vote of Andover on the Constitutional Amendment. In a town that boasts of its schools and churches, and that votes so decidedly in favor of local prohibition, there was strong reason to believe that it would place itself on the right side of the Constitutional Amendment, and when it records only two hundred votes against the licensed grogshops of the State, when clergymen and church members vote side by side, with the saloon keepers and slums of society to continue a practice that is sweeping every year down to the pit of mad destruction and death a hundred-fold more victims than were sacrificed at the late Johnstown disaster, there seems to me that something is the matter with our Andover Christianity or its humanity. Will some one rise and explain?

Crumbs of Comfort for "Stay-at-Homes."

The best things are not always the farthest off; mountains and sea shore don't monopolize the sweets of summer life. "Look around you, and you will behold it." Thus the visitor in London is told by an inscription to witness the monument of Sir Christopher Wren in the substantial structures of that architect in the midst of the great city. Look about you, my friend, and "inwardly mark" the solid comforts, the assured immunities that so many good people seem anxious to flee from, in eager haste for chilling winds of the hill country or the damps and sea fogs of the coast line. "Oh, so lovely!—charming, this camping in the woods. I advise you to try it," said a friend to the writer. "How about mosquitos?" we inquired. "Oh no trouble about that; I smoke one out, and three crawl in." Flies? you hate flies? Well, their armies encamp in the localities in the mountains where thousands of people are fed, and the debris of cast off food attracts and feeds the little scavengers.

Never shall we forget the hordes of these household pests that had preempted our little attic room in the hotel "up North" one summer. And how in the cold evening they massed and hugged the doors of the parlor, to get a little warmth; and how the honey on the table was black with their multitudinous presence, the sticky sweetness at once their attraction and their ruin. Lack of appetite! Give me the quiet dining room where the screens forbid the incursions of the insect marauders in my "ain hame." Islands? well, we remember how on an "island" the damp, "soggy" atmosphere penetrating the interior of our rooms, in about two weeks would cover our shoes with a vegetable growth, interesting probably to students of "bacteria," but reminding us that the air of the New England sort, like Somebody's Polish, is "good for all weathers." It was on that same island, the other side of the gulf stream, a lady had gathered, for sale, as well as exhibition, the wonderful shells, corals, and similar specimens for the eye and purse of the curious visitor. The shells were not particularly striking as wonders of a distant region. But finally a special variety of the univalve tribe having been found in the collection, the honest owner observed, "These came from Cape Cod."

(1) The marriage of these parties—Moses Ingalls and Mary (Maria?) Hoyt—was given last week as occurring Feb. 21, 1712. That entry was taken from the certified copy of the Newbury Records, but the date should evidently be 1712-13.

Joseph W. Smith at Biddeford Pool.

A recent number of the Biddeford Journal contains a full report of Mr. Smith's remarks at the public reception there, in reply to the presentation of an oil painting of his yacht, the "Jennie B." Most of it refers to men and matters strictly local, but we make two or three extracts:

I came to the Pool with my parents in 1830, and a half century will be rounded out in August of the present year, since I made my debut here, a boy of seven summers. We came from Andover by rail as far as Exeter, afterwards to Dover, and, when the Portland, Saco, and Portsmouth railroad was built, all the way through to Saco by rail. From Exeter and from Dover we came through by stage. Our family then consisted of father, mother, and three children, my brother and sister and myself. The first season, and for three years, we were transferred from the Dover stage to Wm. Littlefield's conveyance. These were days when long rides in stages were wearisome, but to us children the experience was novel and interesting. It may be interesting to you all to know how our family came to a knowledge of the Pool. The families of Alexander Wright and Peter Lawson of Lowell were in the habit of visiting Peter Wright, Esq., of Saco, who was at the head of the dyeing department of the York Manufacturing Company. When the subject of bathing was spoken of, Mr. Wright said, "Why don't you go down to the Pool where I go gunning sometimes? I think you will find an excellent place there." They went down with him and found a pleasant place to stay, at the house of the widow of Christopher Hussey, Sen. This they followed up, and each successive season found them the welcome guests of Mrs. Hussey.

The Wrights and Lawsons were particular friends of ours, and in 1839 we came direct to Christopher Hussey's house and continued to do so for some years as a family. My mother died in 1851, but I have kept up my interest in the Pool ever since, as will be shown by what I shall say hereafter. I can never forget the interest the people of the Pool manifested as the seasons came round for our summer recreation.

I remember the circumstances of my father having the beautiful boat called the "Lawson" for the day, and we all went over to Prout's Neck and had dinner at Libby's hotel. A glorious day that was, and so thoroughly enjoyed by all. At another time my father had the "Lawson" to take some thirty or so to church. The church was upon the Biddeford road, and close by Meeting house Eddy on Saco river. The "Lawson" was becalmed as soon as she got into the river, and the church was not reached till nearly time for the minister to pronounce the benediction. There was only one horse at the Pool in those days—"Old Jonah," belonging to Christopher Hussey—and after being shut in, he used to cut up some queer "didos" when taken out and harnessed. The old barn has been removed and one would hardly know the place where it stood. "Old Jonah" used to be brought into play for hay rick rides to the beach in which all Mr. Hussey's boarders would join. Later a few horses were added, and it used to be a hard pull on the sandy beach to the pond where we turned off upon the Biddeford road.

The flourishing town of Old Orchard I have seen rise from its infancy. I can well remember when E. C. Staples' farm house was the only house near the beach at Old Orchard. I used to accompany the "Poolers" occasionally when they went over to Old Orchard beach in the evening to seine bass. Later Ned Clemmons, of Saco, had a little "shanty" near where the Fiske house now stands. He sold shells and got up fish and clam chowders. He has long since passed away, but his predictions have come true, as printed in the "Old Orchard Bellows and Goose Fair Guide," that the lightning would flash along the wires and the snorting locomotive whistle along the shore. Mark the changes: Old Orchard, with its mammoth hotels and cottages, the Beach Railway to Camp Ellis, and with its increasing business, the days of the old Halifax and steamboat Augusta upon Saco river are ended to make room for steamers of larger capacity. These were days before the breakwater, when a ship captain who had been absent for a year would hardly know where the channel of Saco river was. In those days nearly all the traffic from the Pool and Biddeford and Saco was done by sail boats.

News and Notes of the Week.

Secretary Blaine denies emphatically the truth of his reported resignation.

The Dakota wheat crop is estimated to be not over 25,000,000 bushels, about one half a full crop.

Two hundred persons were more or less injured at Milford, Tuesday night, by the falling of a section of seats in Bristol's Circus.

The terrible Whitechapel murders in London are revived again, the eighth victim of the murderer being found Monday morning.

Marblehead yachtsmen are much excited over the way in which the Scotch yacht Minerva has beaten our crack boats in the last two weeks' races.

Henry C. Bowen, editor of the Independent, was thrown from his carriage last Friday, and badly shaken up and bruised for a man of nearly 80 years.

A large furniture factory in South Boston was burned Sunday night, causing a loss of about $20,000, and throwing about sixty hands out of employment.

Capt. Frank E. Orcutt has been appointed Internal Revenue Collector in Boston to succeed Mr. Fitzgerald who was an appointee of Pres. Cleveland.

The American Art Association have secured the celebrated painting, "The Angelus," but will exhibit it for a short time in Paris before bringing it to this country.

China is the victim of another terrible flood. Seven villages were inundated, and six thousand lives were lost. Houses were swept away, and over ten thousand persons are homeless.

President Pepper of Colby University has resigned, and Professor Albion W. Small has been chosen to take his place. Prof. Small has been professor of history at Colby for the past eight years.

An insane man in Cumberland, R. I., who has been allowed his liberty because he was thought to be harmless, shot and fatally wounded a respectable farmer of that town, Wednesday forenoon.

The French Government have summoned Gen. Boulanger to appear for trial within ten days, on the penalty of having all his property confiscated. Serious charges are being piled up for him to answer.

Oklahoma is passing through the period of lawlessness usual to the beginning of frontier towns. Three United States Deputy Marshals have been killed during the past two weeks, while attempting to do their duty.

200 persons were terribly poisoned at a picnic near Montreal last week, by eating picnic ice-cream which had stood in zinc freezers over night. Only the prompt labors of a large force of physicians prevented fatal results.

In Washington Territory the two sexes, in about equal proportions, appear to favor woman suffrage. A petition has been presented to the Washington Constitutional Convention, signed by 594 men and 415 women, asking that female suffrage be granted.

The will of Miss Mary A. Brigham, one of the victims of the recent railroad disaster at North Haven, was filed in Worcester, Thursday. She leaves a trust fund of $10,000 for her mother, from which $1000 is eventually to go to the Tolman Fund of Mount Holyoke Seminary.

The Governor of Mississippi seems to be in earnest at last, in his attempts to bring the prize fighters to justice, and they are fugitives. It is reported that the wounds of Kilrain are very dangerous, in which case the champion slugger will probably get the full benefit of the law.

A train on the Pennsylvania Road carrying miners home from their day's work in the colliery on Wednesday, was run into by two heavy freight cars, and a bad accident was the result. Two men were killed and forty others more or less injured. Another train on an Indiana road was badly demoralized, and 12 or 15 passengers seriously injured.

The engagement of Mr. Emmons Blaine and Miss Anita McCormick, the second daughter of the late C. H. McCormick, of Reaper fame, is announced. Miss McCormick is a beautiful and accomplished girl of 23, and has been a great favorite in Chicago society. She will have a fortune of two millions or more in her own right.

Somerville is the home of Mrs. Robinson, whose doings a year ago so stirred this vicinity, and now the terrible murder by a man, for a cause no one knows what, of a wife, two children and himself adds another to the awful crimes in that city. The deed was done Saturday morning, the man killing his wife a woman of about fifty, two boys aged 12 and 14, and a girl aged 10 years, and then shooting himself.

The week's fire record does not show any very large fires excepting that from the great forest fire raging in Oregon by which there will be a loss estimated to reach nearly a million dollars. At Lowell, on Wednesday night, the stable of the Horse Railroad was burned. 120 horses, 40 cars, a large quantity of hay and grain besides tools etc. were burned with the buildings, which were a total loss. Hotel Belmont and several other buildings were also somewhat damaged. The total loss amounts to about $150,000.

Mr. Osmyn Brewster, the surviving member of the well known firm of Crocker & Brewster, Publishers and Booksellers in Boston from 1818 to 1876, died in Boston on Monday at the advanced age of 92 years. The death of the senior member of the firm two years ago, dissolved what was probably the longest partnership in the history of Boston, extending over a period of 75 years. Mr. Brewster was active in promoting the interests of the mechanics of Boston, and devoted much time to the interests of the Massachusetts Charitable Association.

Postmaster General Wannamaker has exercised his authority in regard to the rates for government telegraph service, for the past year. He has decided that the government shall pay the Western Union Company one mill per word instead of one cent as heretofore, for all telegrams of whatever length. This is said to be hardly the cost of paper, when only short messages are sent, and the general verdict is, that though the Postmaster General has that authority, it is rather small business for the U. S. government to try to save something in such ways as this.

The eighth Annual Convention of the Christian Endeavor societies of the country, held at Philadelphia last week, was probably the largest gathering of delegates ever known in the country. Eight thousand young people from all parts of this continent were in attendance and listened eagerly and attentively to the earnest and helpful addresses of such prominent Christian speakers as Gen. O. O. Howard, Postmaster General Wannamaker, Dr. Hamilton, Dr. Gifford and many others. Over half a million young people are now members of this society, in this country.

Bay State politics are beginning to be lively so far as conference work is concerned, and the prospect is for an active campaign this Fall. The gubernatorial contest is at present confined, for the republican nomination, to Mr. W. W. Croft of New Bedford and Lieut. Gov. Brackett, but it is not improbable that the contest may become so hot between those two as to make it advisable for republicans to nominate some other man. Usually there is but little preliminary work for the second place on the ticket, but this year there are already four prominent candidates for the republican nomination; Hon. George W. Johnson of Brookfield, Hon. Wm. H. Haile of Springfield, Hon. Myron P. Walker of Belchertown, and Hon. Francis Jewett of Lowell. Mr. Johnson is a lawyer, Mr. Haile is a manufacturer, Col. Walker is a retired merchant and an old soldier, and Mr. Jewett is a well known commission merchant of Lowell. In democratic quarters there is very little talk as yet. The nomination for governor is sure to go to Hon. W. E. Russell, and he will be a strong candidate.

Glen Mills Breadstuffs.

Among their specialties are

made from the very best pure yellow corn, thoroughly cleansed, ground and bolted by a process peculiar to this mill. It contains all other bolted meals in the market in sweetness and flavor.

ENTIRE WHEAT FLOUR

is made from selected, choice, ripe wheat, the grain first having been thoroughly cleansed, scoured and brushed, the woody fibre discarded, the inner brand retained, and the whole reduced to a uniform fineness by a process peculiar to our own mills. Every effort of the mind or movement of the muscle involves the waste of nervous energy and vitality; we must build up our systems by those elements which will replace those wastes. Chemical analysis shows us that waste flour cannot do this, as the best part of the wheat is sacrificed for the sake of the color.

GLEN MILLS ENTIRE WHEAT FLOUR contains all the elements of the wheat, stored there by our Creator for our use.

Those preferring a coarse Graham should use the

Glen Mills True Wheat Meal

the best wheat meal in the market.

GLEN MILLS NEW PROCESS RYE MEAL,

Is made from the best quality of White Rye, which before it comes from the mills is thoroughly cleansed from all impurities, so that nothing comes to the reducing mills but plump, sound rye, as clean as washing can make it. One five pound package of our rye meal will convince you of its merits.

DOINGS OF THE WEEK.

SUNDAY NEWS AND NOTES.

"Not many news this week." No, you are right, there are not, and we think if you had been looking for news as hard as we have you would turn with pleasure to other things than news, and turning, find on page 2 a correspondent's views on "Prohibition in Andover." Some thoughts from another writer to help make Andover the most comfortable place there is, for those who can't go anywhere else, and some interesting extracts from Mr. Joseph W. Smith's Biddeford Pool Experiences. The long selection on page 6 is on a subject that the Century has interested thousands of its readers in, and other news and notes through the paper will, we believe, take the place of the news that are not.

Postmaster Goldsmith has prepared a very interesting report of the last year's business at the Andover Post Office, which we are very glad to present to our readers. By it will be seen that there are a good many different transactions to be looked after in this department, and that the Andover office does considerable business in a year. And all of the troubles connected with running a Post Office are not shown in that report, either.

An Andover parent protests vigorously against the proposed opening of the schools in August. We understand that the idea has been abandoned, and the school committee will open them as heretofore, but we have not yet received any official notice in regard to the matter.

The conduct of some of the attendants at the band concert last Friday night was of the most disgraceful and rowdyish character. Throwing of stones, spurning water, hoots and yells all combined to make the evening anything but pleasant for the members of the band. It would seem as if there could not be a man, woman or child in Andover so unappreciative of the generosity of the band in giving these concerts free, as to disturb the enjoyment of them, in any way.

It is hard, however, to account for the delights of some of the hoodlum element of our town, and as long as the authorities allow this element the free sway of last Friday night, it will continue to be a nuisance. The only way it can be checked is to make an example of two or three of the offenders, by giving them the full extent of the law's punishment for such disturbances.

We have received, like many other newspapers we find, a circular from a Mr. Frederick Everett, extolling the many virtues of Hon. Charles H. Allen of Boston (not our ex-congressman), and nominating him for our next Governor. And even more than that, it (the circular), elects him, "for it doubts if he should be nominated if the democrats would dare to put a man in opposition." Now we don't know anything about Mr. Allen, and we find many others just like us, but he must indeed be a wonderful man to be able to so unite this people of the Bay state, that they all would hold up their hands and cry with one accord to the Secretary of State, to cast one ballot for Governor, and that for the Hon. Charles H. Allen of Boston. How this would simplify all elections for the next few years! In 1892 the whole nation would rise in even mightier force and carry the nominee of the same circular into the President's chair with such a united voice that there would be nothing left for other nations to do, but to say "Come thou and rule over us." Seriously we believe Mr. Allen to be a most estimable and capable gentleman, and from all that is said of him a man well fitted for Massachusetts' highest office, but the circular referred to is one of the most foolish productions we have ever seen, and will without doubt put an end to all of Mr. Allen's chances for a gubernatorial nomination this year. Beware of friends!

ANDOVER NEWS.

For other Andover News, see Pages 1 and 8.

Prof. and Mrs. Churchill and their son Marlborough were at Bethlehem, N. H., last week, by invitation from the American Institute of Instruction, which was holding its annual meeting this year amongst the mountains. Prof. Churchill entertained the audience on Wednesday and Thursday evenings. More than a thousand teachers were present at the Institute, and the meetings were full of instruction and inspiration.

Mr. Jonathan Towle met with a serious accident last Saturday, while loading hay in the field near his house. He was on top of the load and attempted to control his horse by speaking to him, but the horse became restive and instead of stopping when called upon, he kept on across the field out into the main street. When turning into the road the wagon struck the curbing and threw Mr. Towle violently to the ground. No bones were broken but the gravel and stones made some bad bruises and cuts. It was a fortunate escape, considering Mr. Towle's great age of over 80 years.

The firemen had a thoroughly good time at Lawrence last Saturday, and returned well satisfied with the performance of the steamer. She threw farther than any other engine of her class, and ranked third in the whole contest, a most creditable performance.

Prof. Harris preached at the Congregational church in Bar Harbor, last Sunday.

Prof. Churchill is to read at Pilgrim Hall, Congregational House, Boston, next Thursday, July 20th, in the summer course of lectures and readings arranged by Prof. Moses True Brown, principal of the Boston School of Oratory.

Miss Jennie Y. Middleton has returned home from Ripon, Wisconsin, where she has completed a three year's course at Ripon College.

Three Andover merchants on Main St. looking for something new (in same box with TOWNSMAN scribe). All at once the face of one merchant illumines; he has discovered the newest thing he has seen for a long time, in Andover; a boy sweeping out his store without being told!

The contract for the new school house at Ballardvale has been signed and calls for the completion of the building by February 1st, 1890.

Rev. Frederic A. Wilson of the Free church is taking a rest of two or three weeks at his old home in Orono, Me.

Prof. Ryder will preach at the Free church next Sunday.

The Abbot Academy trustees have awarded the contract for wiring the new Draper Hall, for electric light, to the Boston agents of the Edison Electric Illuminating Co.

Poles! Poles! Poles! how they do show out! and what handsome, ornamental specimens some of them are! But they are needed eyesores if we would enjoy the benefits of the bright and luminous rays they are to carry into all of Andover's dark corners.

Rev. J. W. Savage of Lake Linden, Michigan, will preach at the South church next Sunday.

Some one has asked what is represented in "The Angelus," the celebrated painting by Millet recently purchased for about $110,000, and soon to come to America. The "Angelus" is the prayer repeated by Roman Catholics at the strike of the "Angelus" bell, morning, noon and night. The custom of striking the bell and bowing in prayer at its call is a very old one in Catholic countries. Millet's "Angelus" represents a peasant man and woman in the fields at the hour of the "Angelus," and as the bell sounds in the distant spire, they drop their heads in reverence and repeat the prayer which begins with the word. The picture is a master's rendering of a beautiful scene.

Miss Adele M. Shaw formerly of Andover, but now abroad, has a very interesting sketch of Vesuvius and vicinity, in the current number of the Congregationalist.

Two more hearings were given by Commissioner Robinson on the Andover case, last week. Testimony was taken upon the appeal of Prof. Smyth against the late Dr. Eustis being allowed to act upon the case, because of prejudice. The appellant's case was closed, and the hearing adjourned to Springfield, for yesterday, to take testimony on the other side.

To the Editor of the Townsman:

In a recent number of the TOWNSMAN I notice an intimation that the School Committee propose to open the school in the midst of the heat of August. Will you please insert this protest against it? I am sure you say truly that the parents, teachers, and pupils would go as a body solid against it, and if the entire constituency of the Committee, those for whom and by whom the schools are maintained, are not suited by the date, it would seem an arbitrary act on their part to insist on it. They will surely have to search long before they will find a town of any standing, in these days, which will keep them company in calling together their children for school in the month of August, and I protest against it in Andover as

Abbott Village.

Owing to the inability of the No. Andovers to raise a team, the Lawrence Athletics were the visitors, and played a very interesting and exciting game. The home team lost the toss and were sent to the bat, Bruce and Dick being first batsmen. Both hit freely, and 23 runs were registered when the first wicket fell. After that, however, the batsmen gave little trouble, the 10th wicket only yielding 46 runs, Dick contributing 19 runs. Lawrence then went in, and aided by somewhat loose fielding secured 45 runs, Hetherington having 12 and Smith 7 (not out). A very pleasant game resulted in a victory for the home team by 1 run. The following is the score:

The hacking department of the Smith & Dove works has gone on short hours again.

The executive committee of the five cricket clubs competing for the district challenge club, met on Friday evening, and awarded the disputed game between the Andovers and Lawrence Albions, to the former club. The Albions kicked at a decision of the umpire, and refused to send in their men in the allotted time, Andover claiming the game. Andover now leads the league, three won, none lost; while Albions are second, two won, one lost.

The rain-storm of Monday spoiled the moonlight ride to Haggatt's Pond for the young people of the village, and it has been postponed till next month.

The Andovers go to Lawrence Saturday to play the Merrimacs a cup game. The Merrimacs are a set of vigorous players, and unless Andover bats better than in the last few games, they will certainly come off second best.

Frye Village.

Mr. Thomas Bentley's fishing excursion came off very successfully last Saturday. The prize winners were John Hurley, first fish; Thomas Martin, largest fish; Charles Murphy, smallest. The fishing finished about noon. They spent the rest of their time cruising about and got a good view of the yacht race off Marblehead. They landed home at 5.50 P. M.

Miss Addie Doble had a very pleasant birthday party at her home Wednesday evening, a number of her friends and acquaintances from Lawrence and the vicinity being present. She was the recipient of some valuable presents, and a very pleasant evening was spent.

Marion, Almer and Walter Rushworth from Lowell, and Edith Broadbent from Providence, R. I. are having their vacation at Mr. Alfred Playdon's.

Mr. John Hutcheon, who has been confined to the house for some time, is able to walk about with the aid of crutches.

The infant son of Mr. James Blamyre died Monday evening. The funeral was held Wednesday from the house, Rev. F. W. Greene conducting the services. The remains were interred in the West Parish cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Callum and family of Newton were visiting at Mr. David Mitchell's last Friday.

BALLARDVALE

One of the most barefaced and contemptable pieces of thieving ever thought of was the stealing of a large quantity of grass from a hardworking laboring man last Sunday night. Thos. McGovern, who lives in Mr. William Allen's house in the plains, bought some standing hay of Jas. Riley and had it cut and raked up Saturday night. The next morning the whole lot had disappeared. Of course no one knows whether the thieves are the same parties who broke in F. G. Haynes & Co.'s store the other day or not; but whether or no, there is getting to be considerable of this petty thieving going on, and if our police cannot bring the offenders to justice, people had better provide themselves with firearms and learn how to use them.

Dr. and Mrs. Shattuck and Mrs. Marland were among the party who viewed the yacht race by invitation of the Boston Herald, Mouday last.

Mrs. Geo. Simpson has gone to Providence, R. I., for a visit.

The night-blooming cereus owned by Mrs. Chas. Green put forth its annual blossoms this week, which on this particular plant are always two in number.

Mrs. W. F. Ward and her mother, Mrs. Stanley, will spend the summer at Bar Harbor.

The new school house, as contracted for, will be built of plain red brick, and of the Gothic style of architecture. There will be six rooms, each capable of seating 42 pupils. Two of these, in the second floor, will not be divided at present but can be used as an exhibition hall, etc. It will be a pretty building and an ornament to the village.

Open air meetings will be held under the auspices of the Methodists every Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock, at Shawsheen Grove, until further notice. The first was held last Sunday.

Miss Amy Rhodes, Me. spent Sunday in town.

Miss Mellie Kniffen spent last week in Lowell.

Business will be on the boom in Ballardvale this fall. The Hat shop will be started up at once in a new business of a textile nature, and the machinery is being put in now. The mill is very busy, and Messrs. Sullivan and Willard are making heavy shipments. The Craighead & Kintz Co. are going to do a heavy business, and are already running overtime. Our long looked for season of prosperity seems to have come.

Great preparations are being made for the anniversary of the Cosmopolitan Club, to-night.

Merit Wins.

We desire to say to our citizens, that for years we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklen's Arnica Salve and Electric Bitters, and have never landed remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and we stand ready to refund the purchase price, if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their great popularity purely on their merits. Sold by all Druggists.

A purse, belonging to Mrs. H. H. Leavitt, was taken from her reticule at the picnic at Haggett's Pond, Friday. It was subsequently found and returned to the owner, a portion of the contents having been previously extracted, however. The knowledge of the theft circulating from one to another, may have reached the ears of the guilty person who placed the purse where it could be easily found.

The engagement is announced of Mr. William S. Porter of this town and Miss Annie H. Cuthbert of Lawrence. The marriage will take place in the United Presbyterian church, Concord Street, Lawrence, July 26, at 8 o'clock P. M. Reception in Odd Fellows Hall in town, the same evening, Friday at 9 P. M.

A full complement of the members of the Eben Sutton S.F.E. Co., accompanied the engine to Lawrence, Saturday afternoon to attend the Firemen's muster. It was the earnest desire of Foreman Burnham, that nothing except the implements and material used in connection with the fire department should appear in his section of the parade; therefore, all outside garnishing was, so far as practicable, dispensed with. The engine horses were in fine condition, and under the masterly hand of driver Davis made a good appearance, as did also the machine itself, having been previously polished and cleaned by engineer Robinson until it shone brilliantly. The hose wagon was refilled with the new hose, and was driven by driver Mizen. The company was accorded a position near the head of the line, and escorted by the N. A. Drum Corps, made a creditable representation for the town. Immediately after the parade, the apparatus was returned to the house to be on hand in case of necessity. The Babcock hook and ladder truck of Lowell, on which is an extension ladder that can be projected perpendicularly into the air a distance of 80 feet, unsupported from the top, and, in addition, is able to sustain two lines of hose, was experimented with, and attracted considerable attention.

Although those who attended the picnic of the Congregational Sunday school, last Friday at Haggett's Pond, were not so many in numbers as in former years, their enjoyment of the day and its privileges seemed all the more, perhaps on account of not being crowded. All of the boats which had been engaged for the use of the school were in demand continuously, and the other boats were also hired during the day. In the morning a boat race was instituted. Four entries were made, Coxswain Chickering's crew securing the first honors; Coxswain Morrill's crew the second honors, a short distance behind; F. S. Smith, judge.

In the 3 legged race F. Coleman and A. Chickering appeared first at the winning stake, closely followed by Bruce and Lamb. In a 100 yard dash, Chickering led. Judge, Fred Smith. A base-ball game, Capt. Wm. McQuestion against Capt. Arthur Chickering, disposed of the afternoon. Battery, Morrill and McQuestion, Robt. Johnson, and Chickering. Umpire Stansfield called the game at the close of the sixth inning in order to give the players ample time to catch the train, and on account of lack of room to record the scores. The game then stood 13-14 in favor of McQuestion's team. The salient points of the game were the passed balls and the general inactivity and irresponsibility of the fielders. A game of tennis was also in progress in the morning. The appearance of the weather, in the early morning, augured a very wet and disagreeable day, and many listened with long faces for the tolling of the bell at 8 o'clock which should announce that the picnic had been deferred; but when the time arrived, all was as bright and pleasant as one could wish, and at the close of the festivities, hardly one of the 200 who attended could be found who had not enjoyed himself thoroughly. Messrs. Hathorne and McLean, and the assistants who had charge of the details, looked carefully to the welfare of all present and their efforts were fully appreciated by all.

It is particularly desired that there be a large attendance of the members of the N. A. Cricket Club at the meeting called for Monday evening, at half past seven o'clock, in the club room. Mr. Harris was also chosen to serve on various committees, among others, invitations, reception, and badges.

Mr. Joseph Rhodes died at his home on Water Street, Wednesday evening, about twenty minutes past eight o'clock, after a lingering illness of several months, during which time he has been a forbearing sufferer of pulmonary phthisis. He was a native of Bowling, a town near Bradford, England, and was 50 years of age. He left England about nine years ago, and has since resided in Lawrence, where he was employed in the Arlington Mills, or in town, working as a blacksmith at the Davis & Furbur Machine Works. He was a member of the Loyal Hearts of Oak, No. 6294, and Essex Lodges, I. O. O. F., Manchester Unity, of Lawrence. He was well-known and respected among his many friends as an honorable and straightforward man. The funeral arrangements are in charge of the Loyal Hearts of Oak Lodge, and the services will be held from his late home, Sunday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, conducted by Rev. Clark Carter, of Lawrence, who will officiate in the absence of Rev. H. H. Leavitt. The deceased leaves a widow, two sons and four daughters. At the meeting of the Lodges in Lawrence, on Thursday evening, it was decided to attend the funeral in a body. Past Grand, Messrs. Ford and Whollan, were appointed a committee to draft resolutions, and Bro. Joseph Hatfield to act as chief marshal at the funeral.

SELECTIONS.

Mr. Kennan Among the Siberian Prisoners.

The account of Mr. Kennan's experiences in investigating the condition of political prisoners in Siberia, as copied last week from his article in the July Century was so interesting, that we make further extracts. Captain Nikolin was the commandant, and the extract continues the account of his endeavor to explain to his American guest the kind and liberal manner in which the political convicts were treated:

"You have no idea, Mr. Kennan," said Captain Nikolin, "how unscrupulous they are, and how much criminal skill they show in concealing forbidden things, and in smuggling letters into and out of prison. Suppose that you were going to search a political convict as thoroughly as possible, how would you do it?"

I replied that I should strip him naked and make a careful examination of his clothing.

"Is that all you would do?" he inquired, with a surprised air.

I said that no other course of procedure suggested itself to me just at that moment.

"Would you look in his ears?"

"No," I answered; "I should not think of looking in his ears."

"Would you search his mouth?"

Again I replied in the negative.

"Would you look in a hollow tooth?"

I solemnly declared that such a thing as looking in a hollow tooth for a letter would never, under any circumstances, have occurred to me.

"Well," he said triumphantly, "I have taken tissue paper with writing on it out of a prisoner's ear, out of a prisoner's mouth, and once I found a dose of deadly poison concealed under a capping of wax in a convict's hollow tooth. Ah-h-h!" he exclaimed, rubbing his hands, "they are very sly, but I know all their tricks."

A cold shiver ran down my back as I suddenly thought of the things that lay hidden in my overcoat. Between the cloth and the lining were two Chinese tea-cups, a hand-mirror, and a small red feather duster, which had been entrusted to me by an exiled lady in a village near Irkutsk, and which I had promised to deliver to Miss Armfeldt with assurances of the donor's remembrance and love. I had left the overcoat hanging in the hall, and if this gendarme officer was so extremely suspicious as to look in ears for letters and in hollow teeth for poison, perhaps he had already ordered one of his subordinates to make an examination of it. How I should explain the presence between the cloth and the lining of such unusual articles of equipment as two porcelain tea-cups, a hand mirror, and a red feather duster, I did not know. I might say that Americans are constitutionally sensitive with regard to their personal appearance, and that when making calls, they always carry looking-glasses in the tail pockets of their overcoats, in order that they may properly adjust their neckties before entering the drawing-rooms of their acquaintances; but how should I account for the tea-cups and the long-handled feather duster? I might as well try to explain the presence of a mouse-trap and a fire-extinguisher in a diving-bell! For twenty minutes I sat there in an uncomfortable frame of mind, half expecting every time the door opened that a Cossack would enter with the red feather duster in his hand. The apprehended catastrophe, however, did not occur, and Nikolin continued to pour out information concerning the political convicts and their life at the mines. Much that he said was true; but the truth was so interwoven with misrepresentation that if I had been the ignorant and credulous tourist he supposed me to be I should have been completely deceived. To an on-looker who understood the situation and could see into both hands, the game that we were playing would have been full of interest. My acquaintance with the political prison was almost as accurate and thorough as that of Captain Nikolin himself. I had a carefully drawn plan of it in a belt around my body; I had a list containing the names of all the prisoners; I could have described the appearance and the situation of every object in every cell; I knew exactly what the convicts had to eat and wear and how they spent their time; I knew that four of them had been chained to wheelbarrows and that several were insane; I could have given him a detailed history of the prison for the five preceding years. With all this information in my mind, with a letter of introduction to the political convicts in my pocket, and with presents for them concealed in my overcoat, I had to sit there and listen coolly to statements that I did not believe; and play, without the quiver of an eyelash, the part of a good-humored, credulous, easy-going tourist who had nothing to conceal, who was incapable of keeping to himself even the details of his private life, and who was naturally surprised and delighted to find that the political convicts, instead of being chained to wheelbarrows in damp subterranean mines, were really treated with humanity, consideration and benevolent kindness, by an intelligent and philanthropic commandant.

I do not know what impression I made upon Captain Nikolin in the course of our long interview; but I have some reason to believe that I succeeded in blinding and misleading one of the most adroit and unscrupulous gendarme officers in all Eastern Siberia. I may be greatly mistaken; but if he flatters himself that he deceived me he is at least as much mistaken as I am. I cannot, of course, defend my dealings with this official upon any high moral ground; but I was playing a hazardous game, with everything at stake and no means of self-protection except diplomacy. In my baggage, or on my person, I had revolutionary documents, plans of prisons, papers from Government archives, letters to and from political convicts, and ten or fifteen note-books that would have incriminated not only scores of exiles in all parts of Siberia but many fearless and honest officials who had trusted me and given me information. If suspicion should be aroused and I should be searched, it would not only bring disaster upon all of these people, as well as upon me, but would probably result in the loss of all my material and in the punishment of everybody who had had anything to do with furnishing it. In view of the critical nature of my situation, and the number of lives and fortunes that might depend upon my safety, I sincerely trust that the recording angel dropped a tear or two upon some of my statements to Captain Nikolin and blotted them out forever.

Late in the afternoon the commandant and I parted, with mutual assurances of distinguished consideration, and I directed my step towards the little cabin of Miss Nathalie Armfeldt, which was situated about midway between the political prison and the house of Major Potulof on the outskirts of the Lower Diggins. My nerves were strung up to a high state of tension by my interview with Captain Nikolin. I was flushed with a consciousness of success, and I felt equal to anything.

Miss Armfeldt, whose history I already knew, was the daughter of a prominent Russian general now dead, and was the sister of Madame Fedchenko (Fedchenko), wife of a well-known Russian scientist and explorer. The family was a wealthy and aristocratic one, and both Miss Armfeldt and her mother were friends, or at least acquaintances, of the eminent Russian novelist Count Tolstoi. Miss Armfeldt herself spoke French, German, and English, drew, painted, and was an accomplished woman. She was arrested in Kiev on the 11th of February, 1879, while attending one of the meetings of a secret revolutionary society. They were surprised by the police late in the evening, and the men of the party resisted arrest, drawing revolvers and firing at the police and the gendarmes. A sharp skirmish followed, in the course of which one gendarme and two of the revolutionists were shot dead and several on each side wounded. The whole party was finally captured and thrown into prison. For being present at the time of this armed resistance to the police, although she had not participated in it, and for belonging to the revolutionary party, Miss Armfeldt was sentenced to fourteen years and ten months of penal servitude, with deprivations of all civil rights and exile to Siberia for life. At the time of our visit to Kara she had finished her term of probation in prison, and was living outside in the free command with her mother, a lady sixty or sixty-five years of age, who had voluntarily come to Siberia to share her daughter's fate.

The sun had set and it was fast growing dark when I reached the little whitewashed cabin, which from the descriptions I had had of it, I thought must be the Armfeldts'. I knocked at the heavy wooden door, and in a moment it was unbarred and opened by a young woman.

"Does Miss Armfeldt live here?" I inquired.

"I am Miss Armfeldt," she replied.

"My name is George Kennan," I said. "I am an American traveller, and I have come to Siberia to investigate the exile system. I have met many of your friends, and I bring a letter of introduction to you from Madame N——."

She looked at me for almost a minute in silent and half incredulous amazement. Finally she seemed to recover herself and said, "Pray come in." I followed her through a small, dark entry into a wretched little room about ten feet long by eight feet wide, with bare floor and ceiling of rough-hewn planks, rough walls of squared logs covered with dingy whitewash, and two small, nearly square windows. The furniture of the room, which was all rude and home-made, consisted of a square pine table without a cloth, three unpainted pine chairs, and a narrow single bed covered with a coarse gray blanket. On each side of the door were shelves, upon which were a few domestic utensils, such as plates, cups and saucers, knives and forks, and a tea-pot. The room contained absolutely nothing else except a basket and a cheap Russian trunk under the bed. Everything was scrupulously neat and clean, but in other respects the house looked like the home of some wretchedly poor Irish laborer. I removed my heavy overcoat and was about to hand Miss Armfeldt the letter that I had for her, when she caught me suddenly by the arm and said, "Stop! Don't do that! Wait until I put up the window shutters and bar the door." She lighted a candle with trembling hands, and then ran out and closed the windows with tight board shutters, barred the door, and returning said, "You are not accustomed to the atmosphere of alarm and apprehension in which we live. You might have been seen through the window giving me a letter." She then took the letter; but without opening it fixed her eyes upon me with the expression of bewildered, half-incredulous amazement that had not left her face since I introduced myself at the door. Finally she said, "How did you get here?"

I replied that I had come on horseback over the mountains from Stritinks (Stratinsk).

"But how were you ever allowed to come here?"

"I was not allowed," I replied. "I came here without anybody's knowledge. I have been in Kara about a week, and this is the first opportunity I have had to get out of doors unwatched."

I then told her that I had come to Siberia to investigate the life of the political convicts, and gave her a brief account of my previous Siberian experience. She looked at me like one half dazed by the shock of some great and sudden surprise. Finally she said, speaking for the first time in English: "Excuse me for staring at you so, and pardon me if I have not seemed to welcome you cordially; but I can hardly believe that I am awake. I am so excited and astonished that I don't know what I am doing or saying. You are the first foreigner that I have seen since my exile, and your sudden appearance here, and in my house, is such an extraordinary event in my life that it has overwhelmed me. I feel as Livingston must have felt when Stanley found him in Central Africa. How did the remarkable idea of coming to Siberia and investigating the life of the political convicts ever enter your head?"

I was answering her questions in English, when I heard a feeble and broken voice, which seemed to come from behind the oven, inquiring, in Russian, "Who is there, Nathalie? With whom are you talking?"

"It is an American traveller, mother, who has found us even here at the mines."

The feeble voice was that of Miss Armfeldt's mother, who had been asleep on a cot bed behind a low partition that partly screened the oven, and who had been awakened by our conversation. In a moment she came out to greet me—a worn, broken woman, sixty or sixty-five years of age, with soft gray hair, and a refined, gentle, intelligent face, but a face deeply lined by care and grief. Her eyes were swollen, with heavy, dark semicircles under them, as if she had spent many long, weary nights in weeping. It filled my heart with sympathy and pity; merely to look at her. I had never seen so sad, hopeless, grief-stricken a face.

I spent half an hour with the Armfeldts and then left them, promising to return at a later hour in the evening, when Miss Armfeldt said she would have the other members of the free command there to meet me. Flushed with nervous excitement, I hurried back to Major Potulof's house; where I found dinner waiting for me. Every now and then in the course of the meal Mrs. Potulof would look at me with a curious expression in her face, as if she wondered what I had been doing all the afternoon; but apparently she could not summon up resolution enough to ask me, and it did not become necessary, therefore, for the recording angel to drop any more tears upon my already blotted record.

At 7 o'clock, I went back to the Armfeldts', where I found a political convict named Kurteyef (Koor-tay-eff) and a pale, delicate young woman, who was introduced to me as Madame Kolenkina (Kolen-kin-ah). I recognized the latter by name as one of the revolutionists sent to the mines for alleged complicity in the plot to assassinate General Mezzentseff (Mez-zen-tseff), the St. Petersburg chief of police, but I was surprised to find her so young, delicate, and harmless-looking a woman. I had been surprised, however, in the same way many times before. The women who have taken an active part in some of the most terrible tragedies of the past fifteen years in St. Petersburg, Moscow, Kiev, and Odessa, who have shown a power of endurance and a stern inflexibility of character rarely found in men, are delicate girls from eighteen to twenty-five years of age, whom I should have taken for teachers in a Sunday-school or rather timid pupils in a female seminary.

One by one the political convicts of the free command began to assemble at Miss Armfeldt's house. Every few minutes a low-signal knock would be heard at one of the window-shutters and Miss Armfeldt would go cautiously to the door, inquire who was there, and when satisfied that it was one of her companions would take down the bar and give him admission. The small, dimly lighted cabin, the strained hush of anxiety and apprehension, the soft, mysterious knocking at the window shutters, the low, but eager conversation, and the group of pale-faced men and women who crowded about me with intense, wondering interest as if I were a man that had just risen from the dead, made me feel like one talking and acting in a strange, vivid dream. There was not in the whole environment, a single suggestion of the real, commonplace, outside world; and when the convicts, with bated breath, began to tell me ghastly stories of cruelty, suffering, insanity, and suicide at the mines, I felt almost as if I had entered the gloomy gate over which Dante saw inscribed the dread warning, "Leave hope behind."

About 9 o'clock, just as I had taken out my note-book and begun to write, a loud, imperative knock was heard at the side window-shutter. Madame Kolenkina exclaimed in a low, hoarse whisper, "It's the gendarmes! Don't let them come in. Tell them who of us are here, and perhaps they'll be satisfied." Everybody was silent, and it seemed to me that I could hear my heart beat while Miss Armfeldt went to the door, and with cool self-possession said to the gendarmes, "We are all here: my mother, I, Kurteyef, Madame Kolenkina, and"—the other names I could not catch. After a moment's parley the gendarmes seemed to go away, Miss Armfeldt shut and re-barred the door, and coming back into the room said with a smile, "They were satisfied; they didn't insist on coming in." Then, turning to me, she added in English: "The gendarmes visit us three times a day to see what we are doing, and to make sure that we have not escaped. Their visits, however, have grown to be formal, and they do not always come in."

Conversation was then resumed, and for two hours or more I listened to stories of convict life in prison, on the road, or at the mines, and answered, as well as I could, the eager questions of the convicts with regard to the progress of the Russian revolutionary movement.

Hints for Summer Vacation.

Many sudden deaths are caused each year by the summer vacation. We know a wise lawyer who never did anything the first day of his vacation, as little as possible the second, took a short walk the third, two short walks the fourth, and not until the eighth day was ready to climb a mountain. By this cautious course he grew stronger to the end, and returned home with vitality enough to work till the time for the next outing came around. One can make a great change in his habits without detriment if he takes a long time to do it, but only young persons can risk sudden changes, and they sometimes fall victims to the strain. Bathers should enter the water swiftly, says a medical authority, not allowing the lower limbs to become chilled, thus driving the blood to the head. Many bathers plunge into the water head foremost; but this is not necessary. To submerge the body up to the neck is enough. After this the body resumes an even temperature, and when this course is followed injurious results are rare. The common belief that it is necessary to wet the head upon entering the water is based upon the assumption that otherwise too much blood is impelled upward. This is not true if the rest of the body is quickly immersed. Ladies cannot be expected to soak their hair every time they bathe, nor is it necessary that they should do so. A common error is that of remaining in the water too long. Blue lips, shivering limbs and subsequent headaches should be sufficient warning. A nap after bathing is recommended by physicians. Too violent exercise in the water should be avoided. The extreme fatigue which follows is in itself sufficient evidence that it is injurious.—London Lancet.

Andover Robins.

A friend writes me from Andover that a pair of robins began to build this spring in a little lilac bush near her porch. The household cat soon discovered the fact and watched the nest building with interest. One day while the birds were absent the cat "thought she would try her hand at it, and not being an experienced workman the consequence was that when the bird came back the nest was about demolished." The birds, however, built a new nest in a tree a little farther off, and since that time have shown such resentment toward the cat, pecking at her furiously, and driving her from the roof into the house, that the cat is in mortal fear of them and will not go out of doors till she makes sure the birds are not about.—"Ancient" in Salem Gazette.

BOOKS AND READING.

The July Wide Awake is a good vacation number. Mademoiselle Papa is a beautiful story of a little French girl seeking her lost father in a mine. "The Republican Court"—the title of a once famous book by Dr. Rufus W. Griswold, gives pictures and sketches of eighteen of the grand ladies of early times, beginning with Mrs. George Washington. Olive Risley Seward gives a most interesting sketch of a Fourth of July at Robert College, when Secretary Seward, Dr. Hamlin, and the Robert College boys celebrated the American Day. How Patty earned her salt, Sierra Neighbors, Photographing an Esquimaux, a Lesson in Batters (cooking series), How to catch fish with a bottle, and Runners and Fliers (geological) are, each in its way, instructive and entertaining. [D. Lothrop Co., Boston; $2.40 a year.]

Lend a Hand for July, besides Dr. Hale's characteristic editorial notes, has an article on Father Damien of Molokai by Mrs. Bernard Whitman, and a sketch of John Frederic Oberlin of Ban de la Roche. There is an account of the Massachusetts Society for Promoting Good Citizenship, as also of a Half-hour Reading Club. Other titles are The Spirit of Laws, The Rights of the Child, and Selections from Webster. Children and "grown-ups" starting or carrying on Lend a Hand or Ten Times One clubs will find many points and hints in this periodical. [J. Stillman Smith & Co., Boston; $2 a year.]

A pleasant Sabbath brought out a large attendance at all the churches and joy and gladness seemed to be the theme of several of the pastors.

At the South church the pastor took for his text, words found in Luke 1: 66, "What manner of child shall this be?" The point of the sermon was the unfolding and development of the Christian character. In the evening, Mr. Blair preached another excellent sermon.

Rev. Frederic Palmer chose as his morning text at Christ church, St. James 1: 2, "My brethren, count it all joy when ye fall into divers temptations." The development of the soul in its length, breadth, and height is of so great value that we may be thankful when God forces upon us many different experiences; each change bringing with it new temptations; for it is by meeting these many different temptations that the soul acquires its growth. Evening Prayer was held at 5 o'clock.

Rev. J. V. Stratton preached in the morning at the Baptist church from the words found in Isaiah 32:2, and in the evening addressed his people on the "Acceptable offerings to God."

Rev. Mr. Wilson, the Free church pastor occupied his pulpit morning and evening. The text of the morning service was Psalms 4: 7, the thought of the sermon being the Christian's joy and the pleasures of the Christian service, all illustrated so fully in the life of David. In the evening, the Young Peoples' Society held a very interesting meeting, and the pastor preached from Neh. 8: 10, "For the joy of the Lord is your strength."

Pastor Greene of the West church had not returned from his trip to the Christian Endeavor Convention, and his pulpit was occupied by Prof. Gulliver. The key note of the sermon was the necessity of a child-like spirit in Christ's followers. The Christian Endeavor service was the only one in the evening.

The congregation at the Chapel church were pleased to hear a sermon from Instructor Wells of Phillips Academy. It was an excellent discourse from the words found in Romans 12: 5, "So we, being many, are one body in Christ, and every one members one of another."

The Homiletical Review for July has an article on Modern Biblical Criticism by Prof. Schodde of Columbus, O., another on Papacy and Popular Education, and the first of a series of articles on Egyptology by Dr. Coburn of Detroit. A sermon of Dr. Storrs on The Power of the Gospel in our National History, and Bishop Potter's famous address in St. Paul's Chapel at the Washington Centennial. [Funk & Wagnalls, New York; $2.50 a year.]

The Treasury is more simple in its make up than the preceding periodical, but the July number has valuable papers, including a sermon by Dr. John H. Barrows of Chicago on A Century of National Blessings. [E. B. Treat, New York; $2 a year.]

Shut-In Society.

Applications for membership to the "Shut-In Society" should be sent to Mrs. H. E. Brown, 146 East Fifty-second street, New York city. To be a sufferer, shut in from the outside world, constitutes one a proper candidate for membership in this society. If possible, the name of their pastor or their physician or of some associate of the society should be sent with application as introduction. If able, members will be expected to pay fifty cents yearly for the Open Window, a periodical devoted to the work of the society. If unable to pay they will inform the secretary, Mrs. Brown. The associate members are not invalids, but being in tender sympathy with the suffering, volunteer in this love for Jesus' sake. Every associate is expected to subscribe yearly not less than one dollar.

Cinders.

"Please, ma'am, will you give me an old suit of your husband's clothes?"

"Poor man! Of course I will. Come right in. So you were in that dreadful flood, were you?"

"No, ma'am, but my wife sent all my clothes to the people who were."—Washington Post.

"You went to the game this afternoon, you say. What were the features?"

"Well, the features that made the greatest impression on me were the features of the man who went out on three called strikes when he looked at the umpire."—Lowell Citizen.

We have a strange way of expressing things in this country. We say a man has been "out on a lark," when in reality he has been out on the swallow.—Yonkers Statesman.

Mr. Ruskin was once asked if it would not be well for the Welsh language to die out and be replaced by the English. "God forbid!" he replied. "The Welsh language is the language of music. There is no genius about the English language. The Scotch have got all the poetry, and the Irish all the wit; and how the devil we got Shakspeare, I do not know."

Young Mr. Bliss (just married)—"I'm going right to housekeeping, and you can give me a point or two, can't you? I suppose the biggest item of expense will be the house rent, eh?"

Mr. Childers—"For the first five or six years, yes."

Bliss—"And then?"

Childers—"Shoes."—Puck.
